ATLANTA, GA., March 28, 1894.

I ought to be clear to those congressmen who have the slightest idea of the attitude and temper of the people that any agreement or "deal" whereby the financial pledge of the democratic platform is to be traded for the seigniorage bill will not even be tolerated, much less discussed. There are, of course, congressmen ready to shut their eyes to the desires and expectations of the people, depending on their personal popularity to change the tide of popular sentiment to the proper time; but those who build their hopes on the support of the people among the democratic masses. There are congressmen, too, who for various reasons are impressed by the influence of the bankers and bondholders and are inclined to bear on legislation, and who are inclined to lend a willing ear to the statements in the eastern newspapers that the free coinage sentiment "disintegrates."

Now we say to each and all of these congressmen, if any such exist, that the people of the country are not in the humor to tolerate any further efforts to outwinkle them. They are not in the humor to tolerate any deal which has for its object the repudiation of the platform. They have already had enough of this sort of scheming and trading. They saw John Sherman's scheme of conditional repeal pushed through by fraud and misrepresentation, and they will not tolerate any further tampering with the obligations which the party assumed when it asked the people for their suffrage and support.

The people would rather see the seigniorage bill vetoed than to see the platform sacrificed. That is the way they feel about it now, and that is the way they will feel about it when their consciences come home to seek an endorsement. The only way to satisfy the people is to carry out the demands and pledges of the platform. The seigniorage bill is not as all-important as some of the congressmen suppose, and even if it were ten times more important than it is, the people would not prefer it to a pledge of financial relief and reform which is clearly set forth in the platform.

The relief that the seigniorage bill will be infinitesimal at best. It only turns to account the difference between the market price and the coinage value of the silver bullion now in the treasury—a sum that will amount to not $55,000,000. There is not much relief in that. As a matter of fact, the seigniorage bill simply authorizes the treasury to carry out one of the mandatory provisions of the Sherman act, and if the people's treasury were now managed in the interest of the people, the bill would not be necessary.

But when congressmen undertake to say that they will be willing to sacrifice the platform if Mr. Cleveland will sign his signature to the seigniorage bill, they go a great deal too far. They overstep the bounds of their authority. The platform is not important enough to warrant such a deal as that which has been dined from Washington.

Bald Ignorance.
 Matthew Marshall of The New York Sun was a very sensible writer on financial affairs as far as his knowledge and interests extend, takes occasion to administer a very severe rebuke to the Chamber of Commerce and the board of trade and transportation of New York, for the seigniorage bill in which they have adopted the mendacious arguments of John Sherman in opposition to the Bland seigniorage bill.

Mr. Marshall seems to be very uneasy in regard to the position taken by the members of the Chamber of Commerce and of the board of trade and transportation in regard to the bullion purchased under the Sherman act. It seems to be afraid that the people of the rest of the country will presently discover that all the financial wisdom of the country is not confined to the pretenders who manipulate affairs in the neighborhood of Wall street. Consequently he deems it his duty to administer a stinging rebuke to the "eminent bankers and business men" who form the Chamber of Commerce and the board of trade and transportation.

"These blunders of New York financiers," says Matthew Marshall, "are naturally made use of by men in other parts of the country who are opposed to us on currency questions to discredit our claims to deference from the nation at large." The uneasiness which Mr. Marshall feels is late in developing. There has not been a day during the past twenty years when he could not have made the same complaint, for there is no blunder too monstrous and no proposition too ridiculous to meet the approval of the so-called financiers of New York city, provided only that it runs in the direction of their selfishness and greed.

Matthew Marshall is very much mistaken if he thinks that any sensible person in the nation at large pays any deference to the opinions of the so-called financiers of New York. It is true that these men manage to influence legislation, but it is not because any thoughtful person defers to their views. It is because they have at their back the organized money power of Wall street, with ramifications that reach to every part of the country where there is a national bank. It is only through the power of this monster organization that the pretended financiers of New York have any influence at all.

People who take an interest in public affairs know that there is more ignorance and financial questions in the business and banking circles of New York city than in any other part of the country, and it is ignorance that is as impudent and as arrogant as it is stupid.

Take, for example, the claims made by both of the great business boards of New York with respect to the bullion silver purchased under the Sherman act. The pretended financiers of New York, taking their cue from the mendacity of John Sherman, solemnly declare that the silver which was purchased with treasury notes under the Sherman act is by that act pledged as collateral security for the payment of these notes, and that the coin is to be made any use of it except to sell it for what gold it will bring in the market, would be a breach of public faith.

Now, this is the doctrine invented by John Sherman's mendacity, and it is subscribed to by the pretended financiers of New York city—the members of the Chamber of Commerce and of the board of trade and transportation. It is no wonder that Mr. Matthew Marshall winces at this arrogant display of ignorance and protests against it in the public prints. It is no wonder that he administers a stinging rebuke to those who, professing to be experts in finance and economy, make such a monstrous display of ignorance.

There is, as a matter of course, no hint or suggestion in the Sherman act that the silver purchased under its provisions shall be held as collateral in the shape of bullion, or in any other shape except coined dollars; nor is there the slightest hint or suggestion that the bullion shall be sold for gold with which to redeem the treasury notes of 1890.

The law is perfectly plain and simple, and if its mandate had been carried out—that is to say, if the secretary of the treasury were engaged in subservient interests of the people instead of catering to the greed of Wall street, there would be no necessity for the seigniorage bill. The law of 1890 provides that after July 1, 1891, up to which date silver was coined at the rate of two millions a month, the secretary of the treasury "shall coin" not "may coin"; there is no discretion about it—the secretary of the treasury "shall coin" under the provisions of this act as much as may be necessary to provide for the redemption of the treasury notes herein provided for, and any gain or seigniorage arising from such coinage shall be accounted for and paid into the treasury.

Against the mendacity of John Sherman and the bold, unblinking ignorance of the pretended financiers of New York city we place the plain, simple, unmistakable terms of the law, simple and simple that no one can misunderstand them, and so unmistakable that only a secretary of the treasury bent upon violating the law would hesitate to carry it out.

The New York Recorder says: Lexington, Ky., seems enthusiastic for the vindication of Breckinridge, but who will vindicate the vindicator? This suggests the old familiar rhyme:

"The river Rhine, it is well known,
 Washes the city of Cologne;
 But tell us oh, ye Gods divine,
 What hence can wash the river Rhine?"

The platform pledge is too big a price to pay for the seigniorage bill.

The patronage heaters do not hesitate to describe the democrats of Georgia as "free silver cranks."

QUEER THINGS IN GEORGIA.
 In Gwinnett superior court George Rutledge, from a residence in Rockledge district, that county, was indicted seven times for illegal traffic in whiskey. His place of business became so celebrated that he was the subject of "Ties" Rutledge. His brother was indicted under three charges of the same kind. After several convictions the parties spared the court and the county further taxes and expenses by entering pleas of guilty to a portion of the bills and the remainder were not pressed. The men were fined $40 and costs in each case.

Ernest Thorpe, of easy conscience and about eighteen summers, robbed his father, a revered gentleman of Dodge county, of $7.50, a pistol and a watch and started out to see the big, wide world. He got as far as Abbeville, where a telegram had preceded him. His father came later and took charge of him.

At Lafayette the wife of Henry Richardson, colored, died of grief. Two of her brothers were convicted in Barlow of the murder of an old resident of Dodge county, and the other is in jail under sentence of death.

THE SUCCESSION.

Gossip About Some of the Senatorial Possibilities.

SEVENTEEN NAMES ON THE LITTLE LIST

Which Governor Northen Has of Those Who Have Been Suggested.

NOBODY KNOWS WHO IT WILL BE

Who the Man Are Who Have Been Suggested—The Probabilities and the Possibilities—Many Opinions.

The sorrow at the death of Senator Colquitt is universal. Every Georgian is a mourner today. It is no exaggeration to say that no man has stood closer to the people or has had a warmer place in their hearts than has the distinguished soldier-statesman, whose body will be laid to rest in the center of the state he so dearly loved this afternoon.

Expressions of sorrow, deep and sincere, are heard on every side. There was a little group of prominent men at the Kimball yesterday and the expressions of sorrow at the death of the senator were unanimous.

"It is a great calamity," said Hon. Steve Clay, who had run down on some legal business. "Senator Colquitt was a brave and true man, one of nature's noblemen; in his death the state loses one of her ablest and one of her best loved men."

"You are right about the young men," said Hon. Jake Beach, of Brunswick, who came up with John Lehman yesterday, and who, though he stopped at the Aragon, naturally drifted in with the politicians and political talkers at the Kimball. "The young men of Georgia do appreciate the faithfulness with which Senator Colquitt has served his people and his state and you may be sure that the memory of his strong character and of his statesmanship will live in the history of our state."

The tributes to the memory of the senator were not confined to Georgians alone, but everybody who spoke his name spoke it with reverence and respect. The senator indeed revered not only in Georgia, but throughout the entire south, and in the north he was most highly respected and wherever he went was received with every evidence of friendship and esteem.

Talk of a Successor.

There was no disrespect to his memory in the fact that a great many people were talking about his probable successor. "Whom will Governor Northen appoint?" That was the question asked on all sides. Whether the governor has made up his mind or not nobody seems to know, but it is the consensus of opinion that had Colonel Pat Walsh permitted the use of his name he would undoubtedly have been the choice, his eminent fitness for the position everybody agrees on, and had it not been for the fact that he had declined to allow his friends to suggest him, but was instead a warm supporter of his fellow townsman, Major Joe Cumming, he would in all probability be the man. As to Major Cumming's chances of securing the appointment, it is impossible to say. He is unquestionably eminently qualified for the job and he has hosts of friends who throughout the state who would like to see him the man selected.

Hon. Steve Clay would undoubtedly be a very strong probability, as there is a very large proportion of Georgians eager to honor the brilliant young statesman. He has, however, completely disarmed them by announcing that under no circumstances will he be an applicant for the short term. "I am a candidate for the long term," he announced. He says that when he declines to enter the governorship race he did so with the announcement that he was out of politics, for the present; at least, he means it.

The warm friendship of the governor for Clifford Anderson, of Macon, and Hon. W. A. Little, of Columbus, and the high esteem which he has for these gentlemen has led many people to believe that either of them will be asked to serve the state in this capacity. Both have very many friends and admirers, and either would in every respect fill the bill.

Mr. Sam Inman a Possibility.

The name of Mr. S. M. Inman, who has been suggested by some of the closest friends of the governor, meets with the heartiest kind of endorsement from all parts of the state. No appointment could be more eminently proper than that of Mr. Inman, who possesses the highest qualifications for any office. In addition to being one of the best business men in the country, he is a man whose grasp on public affairs is firm and who would unquestionably make a very fine senator.

Then there is Hon. N. J. Hammond, who is one of Georgia's strongest men, a man whose long experience in the house of representatives, where he was one of the leaders, makes him one of the best qualified men in the state for this important position. His admirers and friends are concentrated in a single locality, but come from all parts of the state.

Two other Atlanta men are on the list, which the governor has made of gentlemen who have been suggested by their friends. They are Judge W. R. Hammond and Colonel E. L. Myratt, both able and popular gentlemen.

Colonel James W. Robertson, of Habersham, is another man whose friends say he would be one of the very best men whom the governor could appoint. Colonel Robertson would have the strongest kind of support, not only from north Georgia, but from all over the state, and he is certainly one of the brainiest and best men in Georgia.

Hon. Allen Fort is another man who is regarded by everybody as a very strong probability. This is due not only to his high standing as a lawyer and in the affairs of the state, but to the intimate relationship existing between him and Governor Northen. Were it a question of backing up Fort would unquestionably have that of southwest Georgia with a great deal from all parts of the state. The judge is one of the ablest men in Georgia and one who is all the time fully informed on public affairs and has always been the strongest kind of a Northern man.

Then there is Hon. Bob Mitchell, of Thomasville, whose ability and whose strength cannot be doubted. The governor is undoubtedly a great admirer of Colonel Mitchell and should he decide upon one of the younger men none is more likely to secure the coveted prize than Colonel Mitchell.

Judge Alex S. Erwin, of Athens, one of the best lawyers of Georgia, and an able and popular gentleman, has been suggested, and is being considered.

His friends in Griffin, and indeed in other parts of the state, have suggested his name of ex-Governor Boynton, and the suggestion is unquestionably a good one. Judge Boynton is one of Georgia's strongest men.

General A. R. Lawton, of Savannah, is another of those suggested, ex-Supreme Court Judge Blandford, another, and Captain R. E. Park, of Macon, still another.

The governor's list comprises eighteen names in all, and he cannot go wrong in any appointment he will make.

As to the Active Senatorial Candidates.

In the talk about the hotels and about the capitol these gentlemen are the ones most frequently mentioned. Of course there are other possibilities, other men who are mentioned in connection with the office. Naturally among these are the gentlemen who are looked upon as active candidates for the long term in the senate—that is Major Bacon, Mr. duBignon, Mr. Garrard, Mr. Jones, Mr. Blount, with Speaker Crisp as a dark horse. It is the general opinion of those who discuss the question that the governor will not appoint any one of these, although he himself has suggested that there certainly is no reason why he should not. It is generally taken as conclusive that the appointment would give any one of these a strong advantage over the others, and it is not believed that the governor is likely to do this, though, of course, there is no reason why he should not.

The theme is an interesting one and is receiving wide discussion on all sides. Each man naturally has his friend whom he favors, but it is not believed that the probabilities of the appointment.

Mr. S. M. Inman for the Senate.

Editor Constitution: I see from the public prints that the name of Mr. S. M. Inman of Atlanta, has been suggested in connection with the unexpired term of the late Senator Colquitt.

Governor Northen would honor himself, honor the state and honor the country by such an appointment. There is not a man in the whole state of Georgia whose lofty character, whose high sense of honor, whose notable yet quiet acts of philanthropy, and whose thorough business equipment is such as would make his appointment more fitting than that of Mr. Inman. He is a man who is loved for his good deeds, and respected by the entire country for his good business judgment, possessing the confidence and admiration of the rich and poor alike, and having constantly more kind words said about him than any one man in the state of Georgia. He is a man without an enemy, and of whom may be said what cannot often be said of anybody—that all that is said about him is good, and the bad is left unsaid because there is no bad to say.

As a member of the senate he would reflect credit on the state of Georgia, and it would not take that staid and sturdy body a week to thoroughly appreciate his wonderful qualities of mind and heart.

We do not believe that Governor Northen is a man who will feel that it is necessary to confine himself to the narrow limit of personal politics in filling this high office. The appointment of Mr. Inman would be applauded from one end of the union to the other. It would be commended by all sorts of people, whether rich or poor, working or professional men, capitalists or laborers.

There is no appointment which would elicit such uniform approval as that of Mr. Inman, and the greatest beauty about it would be in the fact that he has never sought office, and does not seek this.

An appointment of this kind would be refreshing indeed. A BUSINESS MAN.

Colonel Robertson for the Senate.

Toccoa, Ga., March 26.—Editor Constitution: Since it is incumbent upon the governor to appoint a successor to the late lamented Senator Colquitt, and since such an appointment must be made with as little delay as possible, on account of the fact that the senate is now in session, and business of great importance is before it, I trust a suggestion of such an appointment will not be considered indecorous.

It comes from a loyal and devoted friend of Senator Colquitt, and from one who believes that it would almost cause the remains of Georgia's distinguished son to manifest indignation at the very possibility of the appointment of any one to his vacant seat in the senate who is not ready to take up the torch light for the people so bravely waged by Senator Colquitt up to the time of his death.

We have a brave and loyal governor, and it should be a matter of general congratulation among the people of Georgia that the appointing power is, in this instance, in the hands of a man who, time and again, has expressed himself in approval of Senator Colquitt's position on the most important political issues of the day, and particularly on the financial issue.

Governor Northen will, we know, appoint some loyal and true Georgian whose sympathy is in full keeping with the advanced sentiment of the state on the financial question. Senator Colquitt died bravely doing his duty, and his protests against the iniquity of the single gold standard, and his effort to redeem by honest dealing every pledge of the democratic platform, will live long after his remains have been placed under the sod.

There is a man in northeast Georgia who is today well fitted by nature, by education, by application, and by cultivation to take up the great unfinished work of Senator Colquitt and to nobly represent Georgia in the senate. I refer to Hon. J. W. Robertson, of Habersham county. His appointment would give satisfaction to the entire state. His eloquence and his ability would, at once make him conspicuous in the senate. Your correspondent takes this occasion to present his name to the governor, and it is done without the knowledge or consent of Colonel Robertson.

What may the people of Georgia to the suggestion of Habersham is proud to own Colonel Robertson as its most distinguished citizen, and it would be still prouder to know that this prominent Georgian represented the state in the United States senate.

HABERSHAM.

SAVANNAH IS INTERESTED.

The Forest City Has a Number of Good Men Who Are Available.

Savannah, Ga., March 27.—(Special.)—Savannahians are deeply interested in the senatorial succession. It seems to be an immense question, and many many that lightning may strike somewhere in this direction. There is a movement on foot among General A. R. Lawton's friends to urge the governor to consider his name. It is probable that some communication will go to the governor. General Lawton is not actively engaged in public life and could not be looked upon as a probable candidate for the long term. As a man of high character, however, in those who speak of such an appointment connection might be gratifying to him, as it would be in the nature of an acknowledgment of his past services and would be a fitting reward for a long and useful public career.

General Evans spent yesterday in the city. Today he will go to Macon to be present at the funeral of his friend, Senator Colquitt, and will return here on Monday morning, where the last of the joint debates is to be held. Colonel Atkinson was not here yesterday. He remained in Rome during the afternoon of Monday, and went from there, it is thought, to his home at Newman.

Hon. Bob Whitfield, of Milledgeville, was in the city for a few hours yesterday, and naturally talked politics. He says there is nothing new in the situation in the sixth district, but believes that better management is ahead in that part of the woods.

Two well-known members of the last house, who were here yesterday, were Hon. George Stapleton, of Sumter, and Hon. R. A. S. Freeman, of Truist.

Judge Don A. Pardee, of the United States circuit court, spent a few hours at the Kimball yesterday. Judge A. L. Miller, of Macon, is one of the distinguished Georgians who was here yesterday.

General Evans spent yesterday in the city. Today he will go to Macon to be present at the funeral of his friend, Senator Colquitt, and will return here on Monday morning, where the last of the joint debates is to be held. Colonel Atkinson was not here yesterday. He remained in Rome during the afternoon of Monday, and went from there, it is thought, to his home at Newman.

SECRETARY LAMONT

Passed Through the City Yesterday With His Party.

ONLY A VERY SHORT STOP WAS MADE.

The Secretary Makes a Thorough Inspection of Fort McPherson—A Short Drive Over the City.

Hon. Dan Lamont, secretary of war, and his party, reached Atlanta early yesterday morning at the Richmond and Macon, and remained in the city until noon.

Mr. Lamont was accompanied by his wife, Quartermaster General R. N. Batchelor, Major G. W. Davies and Dr. Bryant and wife.

When the train rolled into the union depot, Captain Clem, of the Atlanta military post, was the lone sentinel who was there to greet the visitors, the hour being just noon.

The train rolled into the union depot, and the party began to move about and Captain Clem was not long in making the city of the party the city secretary was glad to meet the captain and the two were in pleasant converse when the switch engine pulled the car away to Fort McPherson, where it was again stopped. The party quickly left the car and went to the post, where the secretary and those with him, after the inspection an informal reception was tendered the secretary and his friends by the officers of the post.

Secretary Lamont's visit was one purely of business, and as soon as he had completed his work he prepared to return to the city. He will inspect the military posts of that section and then return to Washington. The special car was sent to the city, and the party was taken to the Jacksonville train, which left the city early in the afternoon.

After the car was returned to the city the members of the party were given a short drive over the city, which was greatly enjoyed.

It is intended that the secretary and his party should be given a reception or at least some attention by members of the exposition directors, but the shortening of the day has prevented this. Before leaving the city the secretary expressed himself as well pleased with the city and the military post, and hoped to see Atlanta the headquarters of a new military division at no distant date.

Secretary Lamont at St. Augustine, Fla., March 27.—(Special.)—The Times-Union of St. Augustine, Fla., says Secretary of War Lamont, Quartermaster General Batchelor, Mrs. Lamont, and other members of the party, arrived at the Ponce de Leon hotel tonight from Fort McPherson, Atlanta, Ga.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF SOCIETY

The news of the marriage of Mrs. Cora M. Gray to Mr. William W. Austell, which occurred at Austell Monday evening, will furnish a decided surprise to the many friends of the bride and groom in this city and throughout the state. The wedding was a quiet one. It had been generally supposed that the wedding would be for some time past, that Mrs. Gray and Mr. Austell were engaged and the wedding was supposed to be set for June. The happy pair, for some good reason, concluded to take time by the forelock, and hence their wedding announcement.

A telegram from Marietta states that on Monday evening a telegram called from Atlanta summoned Colonel J. B. Mozley to the phone. "The man at the Atlanta end of the line," says the dispatch, "proved to be Mr. Austell. The message was for Colonel Mozley to hunt up the ordinary and secure a license, and that he and the lady of his choice were to arrive here on the 9 o'clock northbound train. The license was procured and when the train rolled in there awaited from it Mr. Austell and Mrs. Cora M. Gray, and the best man of the occasion, Mr. Ben Goldsmith, of Atlanta. The party repaired to the hotel parlors where about an hour after seven a splendid supper was served. The arrival of a carriage to convey them to the town of Austell, thirteen miles distant, through the country. In this the couple were to be united and the best man and Colonel Mozley entered."

From Austell comes the announcement of the arrival of the party there. The marriage of Mr. Austell and Mrs. Gray by Rev. Mr. Dozier there.

Mrs. Gray is a handsome and attractive lady. She is the widow of the late Frank Gray, and is related to many prominent people here. Mr. Austell is the son of the late General Austell and has many friends to congratulate him upon his happiness.

This evening Miss Alice Wellhouse will be united in marriage to Mr. Boerne Young. This will be an event of great importance in Hebrew circles and many people from other cities will be in attendance. The ceremony will be performed at the temple at 6 o'clock.

The following programme will be given by Miss Marie Louise Bailey, assisted by Mr. William C. Austin and Mr. Charles C. Crew. Company music hall, Thursday night. Mr. J. P. O'Donnell will be the accompanist.

Colonel-Colonade. A flat major; nocturne. D. flat major; ballad. G. major; étude. A. flat. Locusts. "Marche Funèbre." No. 8. Op. 70. scherzo. B. flat minor. Tenor. "The Song of the Lark." Request. Bach-Chromatic fantasia and fugue. Schumann—"Des Abends." "Caravali de Vienne."

Mendelssohn—"Sonata, Op. 15." Chopin—"Nocturne, Op. 9, No. 2." Schubert—"List and King."

Miss Letitia Scott, of Washington, D. C., returned this week with Judge and Mrs. Hopkins and Miss Hopkins from a trip to Cuba, and will be their guest for a short while before going north. Miss Scott is a niece of Vice President Stevenson, and makes her home with his family. She is one of the handsomest and most popular girls in Washington society.

Miss Effie West, of Thomson, Ga., is visiting Mr. T. J. West and family, at 223 Highland avenue, who are relatives. Miss West is a remarkably pretty and highly accomplished young lady and many admiring friends will enjoy her visit to Atlanta.

Miss Sadie Loomis, one of the most entertaining and delightful young ladies of Nashville, Tenn., is in the city visiting her aunt, Mrs. Dr. Long, on Courtland street.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Brandon have issued invitations for a card party on Thursday evening, March 29th, in honor of Mrs. A. Hart McKee.

The second cotton of the Capital City Club will be given in the assembly room of the clubhouse, on Friday evening, March 30th, at 9 o'clock.

Last evening the Hungarian court orchestra gave a most delightful concert at the Capital City Club. This organization is one of the most superb Atlanta has ever heard, and their concert last night was up to their usual high standard. After the concert there was dancing.

THE GUARD'S FAIR.

The Capital City Guard's fair continues to be the center of attraction to the young people of the city. The fair is held in the clubhouse, on Friday evening, March 30th, at 9 o'clock.

Last night the hall was crowded and dancing was kept up until a late hour. There is an excellent band in attendance, which, with the well waxed floor, proves very attractive. The fair is held in the clubhouse, on Friday evening, March 30th, at 9 o'clock.

The group of booths devoted to the sister states of Virginia, South Carolina and North Carolina presents a fine and interesting appearance. The Virginia booth is visited over by Mrs. I. S. Mitchell and Mrs. The Virginia booth is in charge of the ladies. There are many things in it which speak of the Old Dominion. The lettering on the booth is from the leaves of Virginia tobacco and in the front hangs an old Virginia flag. Saturday night has been used especially for Virginians and a large number will be in attendance of Mrs. Burke and has many interesting war relics. Among them are some of Joe Brown's war trophies, and some of the most valuable of the war. The booth is very dainty with its white drapery trimmed with festoons of green. Mrs. H. H. Robinson are in charge of it.

Mrs. Woodward's Japanese booth is one of the most attractive. A great many hand-some Japanese articles are for sale. The machine with its platform under Lieutenant Pyle's arm is much admired. The members of the Guard are uniting in their efforts to do their duty on the pleasure and comfort of their guests. The Capital City Guard has many things to add to the enjoyment of all. Lieutenants Hardin and Robinson are also very kind and efficient. The restaurant under the direction of Mrs. James Adams, Mrs. Frank Adams and Mrs. Fumette is most daintily arranged and a choice menu is served. The Governor's Horse Guards will be in attendance and a large number of visitors will be on hand to greet this popular company.

of mechanical law, and mechanical action has not that lightning-like character that we associate with electricity. In discussing forthcoming electrical railroads some of the projectors, with more enthusiasm than mechanical knowledge, allow themselves to be sanguine that a speed of trains can be obtained of 200 miles per hour. This would be a speed of a little more than 20 feet per second, and a four-inch trolley wheel, if the trolley system be used, would be required to turn at the rate of over 200 revolutions per second. It will at once be seen that no such velocity could be applicable on anything more than an almost imperceptible curve, but, of course, a train could be "slowed" in rounding these. But there is not at the present time any known principle of construction for wheel rotation, involving the necessary weight, which the centrifugal tendency at such speed would be compatible with safety. Of course it is well understood that where the reversible feature of piston and crank action can be dispensed with, higher mechanical motion can be secured, and it is true that electrical action far exceeds steam action in quickness, but a law governs mechanical rotation, and the safe limit is a speed of 200 feet per second. Even with the present speed of railway trains hot boxes are a frequent and annoying as well as dangerous feature, and, as stated, unless some radical change for the better in the rotary principle is discovered, it will be found that the maximum of speed has been reached in some of the fastest steam express trains. At all events, it might be well for a time to aim at a speed of 120 miles per hour, as, more than likely, the practical mechanical limit will be found not far beyond the 100-mile gauge. At the speed of 200 miles per hour a wheel having a diameter of thirty inches would have to make thirty-nine revolutions per second—a rate of rotation that may be set down as entirely beyond the practicable limit. It will be understood at once that these high train velocities demand absolute perfection of roadway, no compound curves, no depressions or elevations, save the most gradual, involving miles of distance; for this proposed speed is to excel anything in the material world. Such a speed as move as projectiles by explosive propulsion. There are no wings or hooves whose movement reaches the 200-miles-an-hour limit, and the severest hurricane does not attain a 100-miles-an-hour movement. While the proposed speed is attainable theoretically, practically it is outside of physics.

RATTLE OF THE RAIL.

An Important Meeting of the Southern Passenger Association.

CHEAP RATES TO THE REUNION

All Manner of News and Gossip from Local Railroad Offices—Major Stahlman is Sick.

There will be a very important meeting of the rate committee of the Southern Passenger Association in Atlanta April 4th.

It is a postponed meeting, all of the work before the body at the session held recently in Florida not having been finished.

Some very important business matters will come before the passenger agents for their consideration. Among the matters that have been listed and scheduled for the meeting is the adjustment of the question of rates to summer tourists and pleasure seekers.

The summer rates will be put in effect about the 1st of May, as they have been for a number of years by the railroads composing the association, and it will be the work of the next meeting of the rate committee to the rates to and from points for the summer trade.

At the recent meeting of the passenger rate fixers it was decided that all of the railroads shall offer a rate of one fare for the round trip to delegates to the conference of the Southern Passenger Association to be held in Birmingham April 26th. This is a most desirable concession to the veterans, and that they will be glad to accept of it goes without saying. The convention promises to be the grandest reunion of southern soldiers ever gathered in the south. It will be a most notable occasion.

There will be Confederate veterans from every state of the union in attendance and the city of Birmingham will scarcely hold them.

General John B. Gordon, commander of the United Confederate Veterans, has issued orders for a full attendance and the committee is freely giving to the delegates the benefit of the railroad men who were the gray.

Cheap rates were also granted to the delegates attending the convention of the Southern Baptist association, which is to be held in Dallas, Tex.

A reduction was allowed hotel employees returning from Florida to the north.

Commissioner Slaughter has returned from the Florida meeting and declares that it was quite a successful session and a convention full of pleasure to the delegates and members of the committee. He says the lower portion of Florida is the most beautiful country in the world, and reports that the railroad men had a most delightful time.

Major Stahlman Sick.

Commissioner Stahlman has not been at all well since the recent meeting of the Southern Railway and Steamship Association in Nashville. A message was received by parties in Atlanta yesterday that he was anything but well.

It appears that the enormous work before the association with all of the trouble arising out of the Louisville and Nashville disturbance has made him sick and worn him out. He is not dangerously sick, but will probably be out of the office at the Equitable building for several days.

The Railway Detective.

The detective system on a large scale was first introduced on the Pennsylvania lines, and an official of the road, in speaking of the service rendered by the detective force, said: "This department has been in operation for a great many years, but not until recently was the territory divided up among the detectives. Now there is a secret service man who is given a stretch of road covering about sixty miles. Before this division system was adopted the detectives were detailed to certain points along the roads. Very often our work is light, and again it may be extremely fatiguing, and then in the yard at a dark night to prevent pilfering or vagrants from stealing rides on trains. If the detective is anywhere along the line the detective in that division is at once informed of the fact, and reaching station he is ready to apprehend the offender as he is about to be released. In case a car is broken open while standing on a siding or in the yard, the detective takes up his quarters in the neighborhood and watches for the culprits to turn up. If the detective catches them, and if not he begins to hunt for a clue—the first thief. It is a fact that very seldom find defendants guilty when arrested at the instance of a railroad company. This is probably due to the fact that the railroad company is not a law enforcement agency. Our evidence against a trespasser must be of the strongest, and in order to win the case, stronger, in fact, than would be necessary to convict a prisoner arrested under other circumstances."

The Sale of the M. and N. G.

The sale of the Marietta and North Georgia railroad is approaching, and with it comes a revival of the rumors that this line is to be joined by capitalists of the north and the Atlanta and Florida to form a trunk line north and south through Atlanta. The Atlanta and Florida was recently sold to the bondholders, it is said, will sell at a low price, about $400,000 per mile. This being true, the bondholders of the Marietta and North Georgia who will probably buy in that road, will have an easy time of it making the purchase desired. All that would remain to be done is to build the link of about twenty miles between Marietta and Atlanta. If this could be done by bonds, so that it is clearly seen that the road could be bought by the state, and in payment, and thus not cost a penny. It is thought that such a scheme will go.

Long Distance Electric Lines.

The long distance electric line is coming, and it is more than probable that the burg will have a long haul of inaugurating it. Mr. Westinghouse is now making exhaustive experiments in this direction. At Homewood, near Marietta, Westinghouse's electric line, a half-mile track has been built at great expense. In order to obtain a level track a deep cutting had to be made. Then the track was laid in such a manner that no prying eyes can penetrate the mysteries of the experiments therein being made. The Westinghouse experts have for a time at least, dropped the storage system, and are devoting their talents to the elucidation of the underground system. The underground system is admittedly more costly to build than the overhead or trolley system, but it is believed that it can be made as cheap as the latter, and under consideration provides for recovering and returning that portion of the electric current which is lost in passing through the motor of the car, is now lost. By the method now being used, the electric power is run off into the ground and wasted. By the proposed plan a second wire will be used in the return circuit, so that it may be again used. This feature in itself, if successful, will effect a large saving in the cost of operation.

Experiments looking toward the abolition of the storage system are being closely watched by capitalists interested in rapid transit, either for short or long distance. The trunk railroad officials, it is said by those in position to know, are not antici-patting an immediate revolution in the carrying business of the country. They argue that if the 200-mile-a-hour electric line becomes a fact, the first cost will be enormous. Export railroads say that its operation would not dare to cross any highway at a grade as the speed of the electric line would be such as to make a collision with a horse or cow would not only mean death to the animal, but destruction for a light electric train and all on board. It would be difficult, if not impossible, to make a financial success of an electric line because of the animal and heavy freight, especially such freight as coal and ore.

Mr. Depew Asked to Buy a Pass.

Chauncey M. Depew had a ludicrous experience a few days ago, the facts concerning which have just become public. A well-dressed young man, standing outside the Grand Central station, approached several persons entering the station, and asked them to buy a railroad pass. For a long time nobody paid any attention to him, but at last he accosted one of the clerks connected with the company. "I don't want to be taken for a fool," he said, "but here is a man who will buy it. The clerk pointed to Mr. Depew, who was standing in the same station building. "Buy a pass," said the stranger to the president of the railroad. "Buy a what?"

Over the New York Central," replied the clerk. "I have a pass," said the stranger, "and I am going to the railroad for the summer trade. The clerk pointed to the man who was standing in the same station building. "Buy a what?"

"I have a pass," said the stranger, "and I am going to the railroad for the summer trade. The clerk pointed to the man who was standing in the same station building. "Buy a what?"

Guthrie Wants to Know Why He Attacked Mr. Morgan.

MR. MORGAN WANTS TO KNOW, TOO

A Gentleman Appears and Says That Guthrie Was Probably Attacked Him. The Trial Postponed.

Two puzzled men were Mr. Joseph H. Morgan and W. R. Guthrie when they awoke yesterday morning. Mr. Morgan was trying to figure out in his mind what on earth had prompted the seemingly wild man to attack him with a knife in front of the Aragon the night before and could arrive at no satisfactory conclusion.

Guthrie was trying to realize how he came to be locked up and trying to trace the dim happenings of the night before. His efforts were equally unsatisfactory. He declared that he did not know what he was doing and could not recall a single thing that had happened. He was dazedly sick from the effects of his night before spree.

Badly disheveled and in sorry condition Guthrie was carried into court yesterday morning. No one was present to appear against him and the case was postponed until tomorrow afternoon. In the meantime Guthrie is in the police station.

The gentleman interested in the case as witnesses appeared at police headquarters yesterday afternoon under the impression that the case was to come up at that time. Major Morgan was on hand and told a very exciting story of the encounter. One side of his face was bandaged up with plaster. He said he had never seen the man before and did not wish to prosecute him in the state courts.

A gentleman living at 227 Courtland street, also appeared and said that Guthrie had followed him. Lost in the night, he was cutting him when he attacked Mr. Morgan. He had had a few sharp words with Guthrie two blocks below the hotel and Guthrie had followed him. Lost in the night, he was cutting him when he attacked Mr. Morgan.

Annual Banquet of the Southern Medical Society at the Aragon.
The annual banquet of the Southern Medical Society of the Southern Medical Society will be held at the Aragon tomorrow evening and the gathering of the young physicians around the festive board will present a brilliant and picturesque occasion.

There is no institution in the country which is recognized as the superior of the Southern Medical college, and the annual banquet of the school during the commencement season are always characterized by a peculiar interest to the public generally.

This year a large class of graduates will go forth from the institution to carry its healing influence abroad and throughout the world. Intellectually, as well as in point of number, the class is of one of unusual strength.

The following are the officers of the society and the members of the committees in charge of the entertainment tomorrow evening:
Officers of Society—A. H. Harris, of Georgia, president; H. E. Thurston, of Georgia, secretary; C. D. Reading, of Georgia, assistant secretary; G. A. Rickard, of Georgia, treasurer.

Committee of Arrangements—E. L. Griffin, of Georgia, chairman; Lucian Lofton, of Georgia; W. E. Jones, of Georgia; F. H. Homan, of Georgia; Park Howell, of Georgia; A. C. Kilpatrick, of Georgia; B. L. Brock, of Georgia.

Committee of Entertainment—E. L. Brooks, of Georgia, chairman; J. S. Fitts, of Tennessee; E. L. King, of Georgia; G. P. Taylor, of Georgia; C. D. Reading, of Georgia; G. W. Harriot, of Georgia; A. W. Bell, of Alabama.

The following are the toasts which have been arranged for the evening—toastmaster, Mr. Thomas J. McArthur:
"The Southern Medical College."—"Nothing more estimable than a physician who knows the properties of the body, the diseases which assail it and the remedies which will benefit it."—Voltaire—Professor William Perrin Nicholson, dean.

The Science of Medicine

GREAT ADVANCES MADE IN THE LAST FEW YEARS.

The Story of a Man Who Has Lately Been Cured of That Terrible Disease, Locomotor Ataxia.

From The Philadelphia Record.
Very little is heard by the general public of the great discoveries in medicine, and the countless scores of lives that are saved by the advancing knowledge of medical science. Diseases, which a few years ago baffled the most eminent physicians and were believed to be absolutely incurable, succumb today as readily as a man of means to a doctor. No one, perhaps, has better cause to appreciate this than Richard A. William, of Bustleton, Pa. Mr. William is a retired cigar printer and manufacturer, and before his health began to trouble him he carried on an extensive business, both in Bustleton and Holmesburg. He is fifty-three years of age, has a wife and three children, and is a man of more than ordinary education and intelligence. A reporter who visited him found him strolling leisurely through the grounds surrounding his pleasant home. Mr. William was at first decidedly averse to the unwelcome publicity which he felt would follow the story of his case in the newspapers. Realizing, however, that it might be the means of bringing relief to others who were suffering as he had suffered he finally consented.

"If it had not been for one of the recent discoveries of medical science, I believe I would be lying helpless in bed instead of enjoying this stroll," he began. "My troubles really date back to several severe falls I received while a young man, but I do not recall any great inconvenience until 1888. At that time I was walking. As this feeling grew more intense I finally called in a well-known physician of Holmesburg, who immediately told me that I had locomotor ataxia, and placed me under a gentle treatment. Instead of getting better I seemed to grow worse, and I was scarcely able to get around. A year after I became his patient he told me that he would have to give me up. He gave me to understand that I must resign myself to a life of utter helplessness until death came to my relief. At last I got so that I could not walk at all; my limbs went back on me entirely, and I was just able to sit up. I then called in Dr. Bull, then in Philadelphia, and now a resident of Chicago. He recommended sun-baths, and I had a sun-parlor erected for the purpose, but my trouble did not yield to such treatment, and finally I abandoned it. In April last, I received a letter from a Mr. Grantier, a friend of mine in Elmira, N. Y., telling me how a new medicine called Dr. Williams' Pink Pills was performing astonishing cures in the severest nerve diseases and advising me to give them a trial. Not knowing the scientific nature of Dr. Williams' remedy, and believing that it was an ordinary medicine, I was at first inclined not to bother with it. But I reflected that in my miserable condition it could do me no harm at least, and I sent to the drug store and purchased one box. After the third box I began to feel some benefit. My whole system seemed better. I kept taking the pills, and one day to my great joy I discovered that I could walk a little. From that time on my recovery has been rapid. Now I am using Pink Pills for five months, from a condition of utter helplessness I am able to walk one mile every day without inconvenience. I take my one-mile spin around the house every day now. I haven't walked that distance before for three years. I find that I can ascend the hilly road which leads to my improvement in my health from week to week and my feet no longer feel as though they were weighted down. I feel as though I have this wonderful change solely to thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. My mother is very enthusiastic over the pills, and thinks Dr. Williams ought to have his great discovery proclaimed from the housetops."

An analysis of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills shows that they contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus's dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of a grippé, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexion, all forms of weakness either in male or female, and all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price ($2.50 cents a box or six boxes for $15.00) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., or Brookville, Ont.

Clothing!

Old styles, fag ends, passe stuffs have no place here. The seasons, the months, almost start with new goods, and new goods only. Makers must be wide awake, up to the times, ahead of them, some people think, or we have no use for their work.

That's why even the most particular dressers are learning to depend on our Ready-Made Suits. Spring clothing—notwithstanding the blizzard—is now moving out merrily. Can't help it with prices so low and qualities so high. Not a regular fashion is missing and there are scores of exclusives.

Do you need a new Spring Suit of Clothes? Had you made up your mind to order of the tailor who is doing business as he did twenty years ago? 100 per cent profit on everything he sells. Of course he tells you no other tailoring concern in the city employ the right kind of cutters and workmen. Of course he tells you he is the only man in the South that knows how to make stylish and well fitting clothes. He must offer some excuse for the vast difference in his prices and ours.

Well, Rather!

We think we know how to make clothes right. We know we employ the best cutters and workmen to be had. We guarantee every garment we make to fit perfectly. We keep in repair all our work for one year free of charge. We gladly show samples of our workmanship. We can convince you of all these things, and that we can save you $10.00 on a business suit, and more on a dress suit. Our prices for suits to order range from $20.00 upward. Pants to order $5.00 upward. Tailoring has been our business for many years and we know how to make clothes.
